

YOUNG & FRUITY,
solo or at the table.

ENOLOGIST NOTES

"(...) sensorially, in previous harvests, the fruit and youthfulness that created them remain as reference. This rose is a wine that is drunk alone, but also delights at the table with modern or moderate meals, matching with the season itself. Slightly corpulent, good acidity, fresh and elegant. And a lot, a lot of fruit.

The choice of Touriga Nacional and Tinta Roriz grape varieties give the TRUE SENSE OF PLACE common in all Pôpa wines."

2019 HARVEST

The 2018-2019 wine year was characterized by large fluctuations in temperature values and by lower than normal annual rainfall, it was considered a dry year.

The harvest started slightly later than normal when compared to the average date the past few years. The good health quality of bunches allowed to wait for the grapes to mature well. The good weather conditions of the year had a positive impact on the harvest, providing high quality grape must, usually with higher acidity and a good level of phenolic compounds.

VINIFICATION

Reception with full destemming. The berries (whole) went straight to the press without crushing. Later, a new and light pressing with the intention of defining the final color of the wine. Alcoholic fermentation proceeded slowly in "bica aberta" traditional method (off skin fermentation) - with temperature control.

AGING

Stainless steel vats.
